The auditorium has now restored with modern stage lighting facilities and motorised lifting machineries.

Revitalising the only surviving pre-war cinema

Built in 1930, the Yau Ma Tei Theatre is the only pre-World War II cinema that remains in the urban area of Hong Kong. It closed down and was listed as a historic building in 1998.

In 2012, the theatre reprised its role as a place of entertainment when it reopened as a venue dedicated to Cantonese opera. The building's restoration was faithful to the original, making it an ideal venue to enjoy the richness and colour of traditional Chinese theatre. Inside, the audience sits under the original roof beams. The internal gable arch over the stage is also authentic.

Equipped with modern performing and rehearsal facilities such as the computerised lighting system, audio system, motorised machinery and hoisting system, the intimate 300-seat theatre is now a popular training and performing venue as well as a cradle for nurturing Cantonese opera talents.
